RUN NO 5 : DANNY ROWBOTHAM & PAUL LEWIS

I should perhaps describe this run in some detail for the sake of those who foolishly followed James Dixon and Ken Reardon into the mangroves! - and then spent the best part of the run trying to get out of the mangroves!!

The trail led into the rocket hut nature reserve and through the dunes on the edge of the mangrove swamps. The route was well marked but somehow, (probably as a result of the near gale force wind) paper was blown into the swamp itself and half the pack disappeared into the bog! The front runners were relieved to get out of the heavy sand near the Umgeni River and by the time they entered the old Indian cemetery, it looked as if it was going to be a straight run for home along the lower bridge road. But not so, somehow the Hares managed to find a track through the bush which led eventually, to Glenwood Old Boys' rugby field and on-on back to the start. When the front runners reached home, they were greeted by the mud spattered Reardon/Dixon break-away mini hash who had missed a good run! The moral of the story is that when you are on paper, keep shouting so that the pack does not split. Thanks to Dan and Paul for a fine run!

HASH TRASH :

In the midst of one of the wildest parties he'd ever been to, the young Hasher noticed a very prim and pretty girl sitting quietly apart from the rest of the revelers. Approaching her, he introduced himself and said "I'm afraid you and I don't really fit in with this jaded group. Why don't I take you home?"
"Fine", said the girl, smiling up at him demurely. "Where do you live?"
