Run No. 22 : Brian Orton

WED : 17.30 hrs: The usual small gathering waiting for the big rush of arrivals between 5.40 and 5.45.

WED : 17.50 hrs: Still waiting for the big rush. Where the hell is everybody? Most of the rugger buggers were obviously in hard training for the start of season boat race against Collegians. Whatever the reason North Durban Hash nearly came to a grinding halt as only eleven turned up to do justice to a well set run.

New feet Neville Knott blazed a trail early on to take the pack out and along the Kwa-Mashu - Durban main line. First Eric and now Brian with this thing about railway lines. I don't know what turns them on, but the next Hare to take us within a mile of train lines is going to study a choo choo from very close quarters. Like under it.

All was forgiven for the bruised feet though as we sailed through the cane at a rate of knots. With a gale force behind him, the good ship Ken Reardon - spinnaker straining (or was the bulge something else?) led a fast moving pack on the outward part of the loop. Mountain Goat Kitching (nog more new feet) showed the way home to the cars and the curried egg. If anybody out there who didn't run Wednesday smelt something that night - no your bogs didn't back up. It was just Smiths guts running away.

Thanks very much for a very pleasant run Brian.

EDITOR'S NOTE: If the turn-out on Wednesday nights does not improve, we will revert back to Tuesday night runs.
