RUN NO. 25 : Flip Flop Orton

Run starts from Umhlanga Rocks Clubhouse, cars to be parked at Umhlanga Rocks Hotel.

DATE : 3 March 1982

TIME : 5.30 for 5.45

RUN NO. 24 : CHRIS WHITTAKER

The fact that Chris is fit and fast was very soon evidenced by the nature of the run. A succession of long fast runs was only temporarily halted by checks and falsies that were all too soon found out. Either all hounds are becoming too skilful at reading the hare's path or luck is playing far too large a part in the Hash. It now behoves all hares to call in their reserves of strategy, cunning and bloody-mindedness. When setting the run, regard the pack in the same light that wives and similar appendages have come to view Hash and set the run accordingly. If you see brambles, take the pack thru' them; if you see a 20-inch tunnel, set the paper thru' it, if you come across a dung-hill, place a check right in the middle of it.

The run itself led away and round and back to the Mt. Edgecombe road which unfortunately orientated everybody and set off half the pack in a direct line for the drive-in screen. Only trouble is, the basic tenet of hashing was completely neglected as paper was disregarded in their vulgar, lemming-like scamper to sate their base appetites on beer and snacks.

Chris, many thanks for the run.

Welcome to new feet

Bruce Hickey made his long-threatened debut and is showing fine form. When playing rugby, Bruce's only weak point was a lack of weight. Now that he's remedied that fault we expect to see him asking the gardener if he can have his boots back.

Twenty-fifth Run :

Scarcely believable, but its here. The next run will have washing-facilities (the sea), privacy to change in (it'll be dark) and a roof under which to drink (the Umhlanga Rocks Hotel). Allied to this will be the issue of our long-awaited T-shirts (Paul Lewis, where are you?). Moves are a-foot to have such issue limited to those participating in the 25th so if you have any sartorial aspirations and want to appear as one of the better-dressed north of the Umgeni, then turn up.

ON-ON

Danny Rowbotham.

P.S. Any remarks about hares increasing their natural bloody-mindedness are not applicable to John Orton. In his case, genetics have ruled out any necessity therefor.
