RUN NO. 39 : STUART JACKSON AND PETER ALMOND

Meet in parking area of St. Margarets Church, just off Delaware Avenue.

RUN NO. 38 : GEOFF TAYLOR

A very able last-minute substitute, did Geoff turn out to be (now where've I heard this before?). Unplanned and unrehearsed, Geoff set out into the growing gloom armed only with a box of chalk and a somewhat sketchy knowledge of the area. We followed him up into Virginia soccer-grounds, around the perimeter and out into Margaret Maytom ; a clever ruse on Geoff's part sent the pack west while he headed south. Eventually chalk was found in Mackeurtan and up we went. Round the byways and byroads until Nobby Clarke was heard to complain, "No more of these bloody hills, please." That was the last we heard from him for soon after, going down Broadway, Lorry Berg conducted a head count and discovered one short. I'm still in the dark as to what purpose the head-count serves as no-one waited nor did anybody consider going back to locate him).

Down Broadway, Ken lead us and realised Lorry's worst fears when he turned left into Fairway. After 500 metres we came across a sign "Virginia Airfield - 1,5 km' - not conducive to aiding flagging feet. Close to home we saw the unmistakable silhouette of Geoff Taylor and obviously our shouts spurred him on for we got no closer and he maintained his lead to the somewhat wet and cold venue at the cars.
